

Year 3

In year 3 we have been busy continuing our work about the Romans. In our literacy lessons we have been writing our own non-chronological report about the Romans. We have already written about the army and entertainment, such as gladiators.

We also learnt about Pompeii. We found it really interesting learning about Mount Vesuvius and how the volcano erupted. In our extended writing we imagine we were in Pompeii during the eruption. We watched a video to give ourselves some ideas and to help us think of exciting language we could use to describe what we might see, hear and feel.

In science we have been learning about magnetism. We investigated materials and tested those we found in the classroom to see which were, or weren't, magnetic. We then followed this by testing different magnetics to see which was the strongest. We used three different magnetic and looked to see which could pick up the most paperclips in one go.

We cannot wait to continue our learning next week!
